He was standing on a pair of messenger wires and when he took hold of a wire above formed a circuit and it is believed received a shock of 2300 voltage. The points of contact were in his left hand and left foot. Just where the power came from is not known, said Dr. Champlin, president of the telephone company, as it may have come from miles away and surcharged the wire or wires, of which young Hoyt made complete the circuit. He fell on the message wires and his dead body was held there until lowered to the ground by Charles Clark of the Westerly Light and Power company, and others. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel E. Hoyt. Dr. Scanlon, medical examiner viewed the body and ordered removal to the Murphy morgue, after making searching inquiries as to the fatality. An amendment to the act of incorporation of the town of Westerly passed at the 1919 session of the general assembly, provides that town meetings shall be held evenings, instead of mornings as heretofore. The first to be held under this provision will be the special town meeting, June 3. The purpose of the meeting is to approve or disapprove the action of the town council recommendation for continuation of the effort to secure reduced rates for electricity and gas.
